ABSTRACT

Intended to facilitate cooperation among all types of libraries and to assist the medical and health sciences communities, this directory lists 152 medical libraries in New York State: hospital, industrial, medical research, schools of medicine, and schools of nursing, optometry, and pharmacy. Most of the libraries are open to research by appointment. Arranged alphabetically by the parent institution, each entry contains the full address of the library, as well as the names of the institution's administrator, head librarian, and interlibrary loan librarian. Statistical data on library holdings and staff are included along with telephone and teletype numbers, county and BR's area designations, interlibrary loan information, network or consortia participation, and the names of publications issued by the library. FOREWORD

The fifth edition of Directory of Medical Libraries in New York State follows the format of previous editions. This edition supersedes the 1970 edition.

The libraries are arranged alphabetically by the parent institution, and each entry contains the full address of the library, as well as the names of the institution's administrator and head librarian and interlibrary loan librarian. Statistical data on library holdings and staff are included along with telephone and teletype numbers, county, 3R's area designations, interlibrary loan information, and network or consortia participation.

There has been considerable change in the entries in this edition. It is our hope that successive editions will expand the listing of medical libraries in the State, because the identification of medical information and resources is important.

This directory includes 152 medical libraries. The following types of libraries are included: hospital; industrial; medical research; schools of medicine; and schools of nursing, optometry, and pharmacy. Most of the libraries are open to research by appointment.

This directory is being made available to engender cooperation among all types of libraries and to assist the medical and health sciences communities. Any suggestions from those who use this directory, that may help to improve its utility, will be welcomed.
